	identity. It allows us to share experiences and aspire to expertise. If you would love to inspire the next generation to feel the same, then this course is for you. You will develop your musical subject knowledge and skills alongside evidence-based pedagogical approaches to help shape and mould our future society in and out of the classroom. Challenging our preconceptions of Music and exploring how the diverse nature of the subject can come together to create common footing, will help those around us grow”
