Maths is special because:	What maths is, and what it means to do maths are the subject of multiple books, papers, blogs, chats and general rants! It might be said that maths is a way of being, a lens through which to view and understand the world.

	Solving problems sits at the heart of mathematics but reaching that solution may not be enough. In being mathematical, we might compare multiple approaches looking for elegance, accuracy and efficiency. These are all features of what might be called a mathematical perspective. From the workings of a computer to the way in which we load a dishwasher, maths permeates and informs our lives and the way in which we interact with the world around us.
Train / Work Somewhere Special	Two of my favourite things to do are to talk about teaching maths and to learn about teaching maths. Working in ITE gives the opportunity to do both in a challenging and reflective space – who wouldn't want to do that?!
Work Somewhere Special	Teaching is special because: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Every lesson, every day offers an opportunity to learn and to find out how to teach maths better • It's a brilliant balance between a craft, and art and a science • Seeing a student have their lightbulb moment is a great feeling
Live Somewhere Special	It's hard to think of anywhere better than Exeter quay on a sunny day.
